PROGRAMME

The Faculty of Design was selected in a tender for the promotion of the use of wood and the announcement of its advantages and increasing the recognition of wood as the material of the future. The purpose of promotional activities is to inform and raise awareness of the wider Slovenian public about the advantages of using wood and about the properties of wood as a material that Slovenia has in abundance. By carrying out the relevant promotional activities, the market for wood products and services in Slovenia and abroad is strengthened. Special attention will also be paid to the promotion of carpentry professions among young people who are in the phase of making a life decision - choosing a profession. There is a chronic shortage of personnel in the woodworking industry, although employment and career advancement opportunities are guaranteed for all those who work with wood in an enterprising, technologically sophisticated and creative way. It is desirable that, through targeted promotional events, all the handful of professions in woodworking are shown and the reputation of the profession of woodworker, which is still considered a deficient profession in Slovenia, is raised. As part of the project, we organized conferences, workshops, round tables, exhibitions, design a website and spread information with the help of modern media (social networks, digital catalog).
